What is a Mock Trial?

A mock trial is a simulated court case that offers a “real life” element to your training. Mock trials are a fun way to engage an audience to challenge their thinking through:

- » identifying potential risks including gaps in systems and processes;
- » reflecting on cultural vulnerabilities;
- » highlighting opportunities for continuous improvement; and
- » showcasing how laws are practically interpreted and the effect this can have on your organisation.

Why run a Mock Trial session?

A mock trial delivers an interactive and high impact approach to training. Each case highlights typical practical and legal failings experienced by most organisations in real life.

Our mock trial program can be customised for you addressing business specific scenarios that cover a diverse range of risks or simply choose from one of our prepared scenarios in

- » Workplace Health & Safety
- » Food Safety
- » Bullying & Harassment
- » Environmental Compliance

How does it work?

This is your chance to look at safety from a different perspective, gaining insight from both sides of the legal battle. Entering into a court case, you have the opportunity to be involved as a witness, judge, court officer or jury member.

OPENING
ADDRESS

VERDICT &
DEBRIEF

After the opening address witnesses will be required to give evidence and be subject to cross-examination, similar to what would be expected in a real court hearing.

After the verdict is handed down in the simulation, a full debrief will occur to address any questions and reinforce the key deliverables of the program.

Program Duration: 2.5 hours

Who should attend the session?

Mock trials are suitable for all levels of the organisation. We encourage everyone to attend from business owners, senior leaders and managers, through to operational workers.

Sessions can be tailored for any level of the organisation and to the depth of information required. The premise of the session is to highlight the importance each worker plays in managing risk and changing the culture across the organisation.
